

NBCE Names New EBAS Executive Director

Greeley, Colo.—The National Board of Chiropractic Examiners (NBCE) has named Stacey Kjeldgaard as the Executive Director of Ethics and Boundaries Assessment Services (EBAS). EBAS is a wholly-owned subsidiary of the NBCE, which offers a computerized essay exam that assists regulatory and licensing agencies with their disciplinary cases.

Kjeldgaard is a native of Greeley, Colorado. She received a Bachelor of Arts degree from Colorado State University and Master of Business Administration degree from Regis University in Denver, Colorado. She comes to EBAS with a long history of commitment to the healthcare industry. In 1998, she co-founded a mobile medical device company that was sold to Boston Scientific. During her tenure at Boston Scientific, she led a business unit in the Urology and Gynecology division. Before joining EBAS, Kjeldgaard devoted her expertise to the global launch of a medical device.

Kjeldgaard says, “Although EBAS is not truly a startup business I firmly believe in the product, the process and the people. I will diligently work to demonstrate the credibility of this tool for assessing ethics and boundaries issues.”

Headquartered in Greeley, Colo., the NBCE is the international testing organization for the chiropractic profession. Established in 1963, the mission of the NBCE is to ensure professional competency through excellence in testing.
