

NBCE Hosts Student Leadership Forum

Greeley, Colo.--The National Board of Chiropractic Examiners (NBCE) hosted its 13th annual student leadership forum on January 15, 2016. This year's eight students represented six chiropractic colleges and two national student organizations.

The students were welcomed by NBCE President Dr. Donna L. Craft. "Each year we are encouraged by the high caliber of students who attend this leadership conference," she said. Dr. Craft thanked the students for their commitment to leadership in the chiropractic profession.

NBCE staff introduced the students to the foundations of NBCE testing, with special emphasis on the computer-based testing format and updates in the application process. Staff also addressed myths about the NBCE, and assured the students that the NBCE does not hold scores or grade on a curve. Additionally, the student leaders participated in a focus group that evaluated student experience from applications, through exam administration and security, to score reporting and transcript delivery and overall customer services.

Attendees included:

- Cepeda Carter, National Student Representative, Student American Black Chiropractic Association
- Peggy Chin, Student Council Representative, Palmer College of Chiropractic, West Campus
- Andrew Crape, Student Council Representative, University of Bridgeport, College of Chiropractic
- Ainsley Hendon, Student Government President, Logan University
- Brent Money, Student Council President, Life University, College of Chiropractic
- Jonathan Parham, National Legislative Vice Chair, Student American Chiropractic Association
- Casey Shipp, Student Council Representative, Cleveland Chiropractic College – Kansas City
- Rachel Westbrook, Student Council Representative, Texas Chiropractic College

Headquartered in Greeley, Colo., the NBCE is the international testing organization for the chiropractic profession. Established in 1963, the mission of the NBCE is to ensure professional competency through excellence in testing.
